CIRCUIT COURT HAD SHORT SESSION

TWO PLEAD GUILTY AND ARE PAROLED.

Jury Acquits Isaac Jendron Charged With Resisting Officer.

Judge Guy E. Smith opened the October term of Circuit court for Crawford county Tuesday afternoon and proceeded at once to go over the calendar.

Orel Turner, being charged with violation of the prohibition law, entered a plea of guilty and was released on probation for one year.

Abe Jarrells, charged with a like offense, also pleaded guilty and was released upon his own recognition, to appear at the next term of Circuit court.

The case of Isaac Jendron, charged with resisting an officer, was the greatest attraction of the court this session. He pleaded not guilty and was tried by a jury. Prosecuting attorney Fitch represented the People and Attorney Ross of West Branch defended the prisoner. Village Marshal Mike Brenner was the complaining witness and stated that about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, October 2, he was sitting in Cody's restaurant eating a lunch when the accused, Isaac Jendron, came into the place in an intoxicated condition, and used profane language. That he cautioned Jendron to cease such talk and to go home and go to bed. The latter did not do so. During the talk a bottle said to contain whiskey slipped from Jendron's pocket and fell to the floor. The officer recognized the contents of the bottle and immediately placed Jendron under arrest. Then, he says Jendron hit him in the face with his fist. The officer says that he called for help and Jendron was over-powered and taken to jail. His testimony was substantiated by Constable Alvin LaChappelle, who helped him to make the arrest. Several witnesses swore that they were present but did not see Jendron strike the officer. At the time he was arraigned in Justice court, Justice Fred Alexander warned Jendron that anything he might say at this time could be held against him in the higher court, but after this warning he stated that he was guilty—guilty of the offense of assault and battery against M. Brenner, or resisting an officer. The jury, after being out a couple of hours, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Prosecuting Attorney Fitch made a very able prosecution of the case. Attorney Ross of West Branch, who defended the accused, deserves to be commended for his excellent defense. His work was really masterful, and he won a case which did not appear to have a single chance in the world.

Everything pointed that the accused was guilty as charged, and to win in such a case deserved special comment at this time. The jury must have been fully convinced that Jendron did not resist the officer and when arrested went peacefully along to jail.

The case of Peter Reuter vs. Brune Webe, a lawsuit, was continued to next term.

A judgment was granted in favor of the plaintiffs in the case of the Chatfield Grain & Milling Company vs. William Mosher.

The divorce cases of Lucile Hahn vs. Loyd N. Hahn, and of Bessie M. Richardson vs. Alba Richardson, were continued to next term of court.

Petition of M. A. Atkinson and John Harrison, granting privilege of tapping the connection into the sewer at a farm in Iosco county. He visited the country with his wife, drove about until he found a place that suited him and then bought. "I am more than satisfied with my venture," he said, and there are hundreds of other farmers in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, now farming on lands which are valued at $250 to $400 per acre who would be glad to come here but the trouble is that they won't believe that a farm which sells for $50 to $100 an acre is worth anything. I was attracted to this state through advertising of the development bureau and others can be reached in the same way if the work is only continued. It is to carry on this work, through publicity in the newspapers, permanent exhibits and distribution of pamphlets and the bureau is asking for county appropriations.

In addition the bureau is carrying on an advertising campaign of the district as a summer resort and the people of the district do not need to be told that this advertising is bringing results. The experience of the past two years shows this, and the tourists' movement has only just begun.

Moved and supported that we ad-

Chris Jenson, Clerk.

HOW BUREAU WORK HAS BEEN FITTED N. E. MICHIGAN.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

What Next.

The County Agent is busy now throughout the county on four things:

(1) Urging to sow rye as cover crop.

(2) Urging careful selection of seed corn.

(3) Urging hill selection of next year's seed potatoes.

(4) Testing soil with the Farm Bureau Truog soil tester.

Pieric Acid.

Chance to save more than your Farm Bureau dues.

The government had millions of pounds of Pieric Acid left after the war. This is being given to the farmers, the only cost being for putting into cartridges and boxes, seven cents a pound plus three or four cents a pound freight—it comes in 100 lb. boxes. Government will not bother with less than car load lots. I have a chance to go in with the county agent of another county if we act at once. Those who get it will have to do so this fall.

Pieric Acid is a safer explosive than dynamite. A six ounce cartridge about equals an eight ounce cartridge dynamite. Will cost the farmer about one-third as much. Use it like dynamite. Use number 8 caps. On each pound save twenty cents. On fifty, save $10 your year.

Due to the fact that Pieric Acid is a safer explosive than dynamite, it is being used more and more.

Farmers must help themselves.

In other lines of business they keep posted on the markets. We farmers too often say: "I don't read much, too busy."

All right! "As we make our bed we must sleep in it."

In vast regions in the New England states every farm is run with the purpose of producing feed for wintering every possible cow.

It should be so here. Why not along with three or four cows? The farm should be speeded up to carrying 12 to 20 cows. It is perfectly possible, and is the only reasonable thing to do.

If a farm here kept 3 cows one winter, it should keep 5 the next; 7 the next, and so on, until 12 to 20 are the regular business of that farm. No use to say: "I am too poor." A hustler can increase his herd by 2 cows a year, if he wants to.

Taxes will not increase in proportion to this increase in income.

Not failure but low aim is crime.

Daily Market Report.

Have you sent to Bureau of Markets, Houseman Block, Grand Rapids, Mich., for your copy of the daily market report on white potatoes?

Getting that report may save enough to buy a cow.

We farmers must help ourselves.

In other lines of business they keep posted on the markets. We farmers too often say: "I don't read much, too busy."

All right! "As we make our bed we must sleep in it."

Second Fiddle.

Farmers have played second fiddle all through the ages, because they just worked and growled, and pinched along.

A strange change seems to be rapidly taking place.

Legislature and Congress seem very prompt the last year to consider the rights and needs of agriculture. Why?

Was it because you and I scared them?

It is because farmers are organizing into County Farm Bureaus, then these into State Farm Bureaus; then these into National Farm Bureaus, with suitable committees to confer with the proper committees of the Legislature and of Congress.

The words below are very important to every Crawford County Farmer.

Investment Must Precede Dividend.

The farmers in Michigan are closing the greatest year in their history. The power of membership organization enthusiasm has been reached and passed. There has been no danger of failing. Membership organization was popular. Ten dollars a year was easy when everybody was doing it. The old ship of agriculture proressed with all sails set before a storm of appeal from thousands of farmers for help in an economic crisis.

We are nearing port after the longest and fastest journey that Michigan farmers have ever made. We are ready to drop anchor in a new economic world far from where we were a year ago.

But let no man say to himself that his troubles are over. How can we consider ourselves permanent when we have just arrived in our new land of economic co-operation? We still have to fear the man who is willing to reap the benefit but will not work. We still have to guard against factionalism.

We still have the hardest job of all, that of securing absolute unity, of establishing ourselves permanently in a vast, new and somewhat strange undertaking.

There is no need for fear from forces outside if we stick together with in. Let every member feel honor bound to see this thing through. Let him remind his neighbor who may not see the absolute necessity of unified action that investment must precede the dividend; loyalty must precede the dividend; loyalty must precede a readjustment of Michigan agriculture upon a business basis.

Tired and Worn-out

Detroit, Mich.—Dr. Piero's Favorite Prescription did me a world of good. I had become all rundown, was weak and extremely nervous. I could not sleep and my appetite was poor. I had a tired and worn-out feeling—no ambition to do anything—my whole nervous system seemed to be affected. A friend advised me to try Favorite Prescription and by the time I had taken two bottles I felt like a new woman. I had no discomfort of any sort."

SUNSHADES FOR LUCKY DOGS

Innovation That Was Brought About by the Fractured Snout of the Usually Hot Weather.

One of the quaintest innovations of the recent heat wave in London was the introduction of sunshades for dogs. These consist of light green de-cheinings suspended over the animal's necks by light wire strands.

The "lucky" animals whose masters or mistresses bought the sunshades did not seem so pleased with them as perhaps the donors had hoped, remarked London Answers.

One dog found the heat so oppressive that he sought the shelter of a railway tunnel on the highway. Here he was, however, so frightened by the continual passing of trains that he shrank into a dark corner and remained there for two days, until his master, on the information of a railway man, fetched him.

Although sunshades for dogs made their first appearance, there was a strange absence of the straw hats that horses used to wear before the war. Have horses been so hardened by the great campaign that they do not need the consideration that dogs get?

"Your narrative is too highly colored," remarked the editor, returning the bulky manuscript, "in what way?" inquired the disappointed author. "Why," replied the editor, "in the very first chapter you make the old man turn purple with rage, the villain green with envy, the hero turn white with consternation, the heroine turn blue with jealousy."

CONDENSED CLASSICS

MIDSHIPMAN EASY

By CAPTAIN MARRYAT

Condensation by James B. Connolly

Frederick Marryat was born in 1782 and died in 1848. His father was an Englishman of wealth, and sent to parliament and was a writer of verse and political pamphlets. The son, however, had the same in his veins, and even before he was allowed to enter the navy at fourteen he had made numerous attempts to run away to his favorite element. He served under Captain Cook, and at once began to lay the foundation of that inexhaustible store of knowledge and experience which made him the prime or story teller of the sea. The daring Lord Cochrane was an admirable master: during two and a half years he showed his young midshipmen how to manage themselves and their shipmates of all sorts. And the latter was an apt pupil whenever there was anything strenuous doing. Honorable mention came his way frequently; in 1818 he received the medal of the Humane Society for "at least dozen" gallant rescues; he invented a code of signals; he became a Fellow of the Royal Society.

He began his series of 24 books with "Frank Milman" in 1829, and kept them going for 20 years, to the delight of an expectant public. As happened in the case of so many writers included in this series of one hundred books, success came to one who had found a new field to interest the public. "Midshipman Easy," "Swashy," and all the rest of the two dozen tales hold a thrill for whoever loves the sea.

Mrs. EASY was for natural equality and the rights of man, which Mrs. Easy did not mind, she being allowed to have a game of patience. Behold then a contented couple to whom, after eleven years of married life, was born our hero Jack. For nurse to the baby doctor introduced a strong, healthy young woman, Mrs. Easy, enteching her, was horrified: "What—not married! And you had a child!"

"If you please, ma'am, it was such a little one!"

The young woman joined the Easy household, where she aided every other member there to spoil young Jack, and so we have at five years of age a complete specimen of the headstrong young male. To save him from utter ruin, the family doctor urged that he be sent to a school which he could highly recommend. "The parents agreed, but with the proviso from Mr. Easy that he must not be flogged.

The hapless-looking master of this school was against flogging also.

Caring, in his judgment, was more efficacious, so without troubling to tell Mr. Easy of it, he caused our hero to be flogged.

Jack, however, was horrified: "What—not married! And you had a child!"

Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often disabled by it. I had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did nothelp me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MAUD E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a dislocation or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, head, aches and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Up the Road to the North in the Night.

John McNeil kissed, Ann Rutledge that evening and was most attentive to her, and the women were saying that the two had fallen in love with each other.

"See how she looks at him," one of them whispered.

"Well, it's just the way he looks at her," the other answered.

At the first pause in the merriment Kelso stood on a chair, and then silence fell upon the little company.

"My good neighbors," he began, "we are here to rejoice that new friends have come to us and that a new home is born in our midst. We bid them welcome. They are big-boned, big-heeled folks. No man has grown large who has not at one time or another had his feet in the soil and felt its might power going up into his blood and bone and sinew. Here is a wonderful soil and the inspiration of wide horizons; here are broad and fertile fields. Where the corn grows high you can grow statesmen. It may be that out of one of these little cabins a man will come to carry the torch of Liberty and Justice so high that its light will shine into every dark place. So let no man despise the cabin—humble as it is. Samson and Sarah Taylor, I welcome and congratulate you. Whatever may come, you can find no better friends than these, and of this you may be sure, no child of prairies will ever go about with a hand organ and a monkey. Our friend, Honest Abe, is one of the few rich men in this neighborhood. Among his assets are 'Kirkham's Grammar,' 'The Pilgrim's Progress,' the 'Lives of Washington and Henry Clay,' 'Hamilton's Soliloquy,' 'Othello's Speech to the Senate,' 'Marc Anthony's Address' and a part of 'Webster's Reply to Hayne.' A man came along the other day and sold him a barrel of rubbish for two bits. In it he found a volume of 'Blackstone's Commentaries.' Old Blackstone challenged him to a wrestle and Abe has grappled with him. I reckon he'll take his measure as easily as he took Jack Armstrong's. Lately he has got possession of a noble asset. It is 'The Cottier's Saturday Night' by Robert Burns. I propose to ask him to let us share his enjoyment of this treasure."

Abe, who had been sitting with his legs doubled beneath him on a buffalo skin, between Joe and Betsey Traylor, rose and said:

"Mr. Kelso's remarks, especially the part which applied to me, remind me of the story of the prosperous grocer of Toledo. One Saturday night he and his boys were busy selling sausages.

"There," said he, "this makes seven today. I'll call Monday and get my money."

"We were doing a good business here making fun. It seems a pity to ruin it and throw suspicion on the quality of the goods by throwing a cat on the counter."

"It is," said Samson. "What can I do for you?"

"Want, do good Lord done forched us here to ask you to help," said the negro. "We be high wome out with cold an' bungah, suh, 'deed we be."

Samson asked them in and put wood on the fire, and Sarah got up and made some hot tea and brought food from the cupboard and gave it to the strangers, who sat shivering in the firelight. They were a good-looking pair, the young woman being almost white. They were man and wife. The latter stopped eating and moaned and shook with emotion as her husband told their story. Their master had died the year before and they had been brought to St. Louis to be sold in the slave market. There they had escaped by night and gone to the house of an old friend of their former owner who lived north of the city on the river shore. He had taken pity on them and brought them across the Mississippi and started them on the north road with a letter to Elijah Lovejoy of Alton and a supply of food, since then they had been hiding days in the swamps and thickets and had traveled by night. Mr. Lovejoy had sent them to Erastus Wright of Springfield, and Mr. Wright had given them the name of Samson Taylor and the location of his cabin. From there they were bound for the house of John Peasley, in Hopetown, Tazewell county.

Lovejoy had asked them to keep the letter with which they had begun their travels. The letter stated that their late master had often expressed his purpose of leaving them their freedom when he should pass away. He had left no will and since his death the two had fallen into the hands of his nephew, a despicable, violent young drunkard of the name of Biggs.

Samson was so moved by their story that he hitched up his horses and put some hay in the wagon box and made off with the fugitives up the road to the north in the night. When daylight came he covered them with hay. About

8:30 A.M. he came to a cabin house and burnt, the latter being of unusual size for that time and country. Above the door of the cabin was a board which bore the stenciled legend: "John Peasley, Orville Farm."

As Samson drew near the house he observed a man working on the roof of a woodshed. Something familiar in his look held the eye of the New Salem man. In half a moment he recognized the face of Henry Brimstead. It was now a cheerful face. Brimstead came down from the ladder and they shook hands.

"Good land o' Goshen! How did you get here?" Samson asked. Brimstead answered:

"Through the help of a fellow that looks like you an' the grit of a pair o' horses. Come down this road early in September on my way to the land o' plenty. Found Peasley here. Couldn't help it. Saw his name on the barn. Used to go to school with him in Orwell. He offered to sell me some land with a house on it an' I trust me for his pay. I liked the looks o' the country and so I didn't go no further. I was goin' to write you a letter, but I hadn't got around to it yet. Ain't forgot what you done for us, I can tell ye that."

"Well, this looks better than the sand plains—a lot better—and you look better than the flea farmer back in York state. How are the children?"

"Pat an' happy an' well dressed. Mrs. Peasley has been a mother to 'em an' her sister is goin' to be a wife to me." He came close to Samson and added in a confidential tone: "Say, if I was any hamper I'd be scared. I'm like I was—when I got over the toothache—so scared for fear it would come back—I was kind o' miserable."

Mr. Peasley came out of the door. He was a big, full-hearted, jovial man.

"I've got a small load o' hay for you," said Samson.

"I was expecting it, though I supposed 'would be walkin'—in the dark o' night," Peasley answered. "Drive in on the barn floor."

When Samson had driven into the barn its doors were closed and the negroes were called from their place of hiding. Samson wrote:

"I never realized what a blessing it is to be free until I saw that scared man and woman crawling from under the dusty hay and shaking themselves like a pair of dogs. The weather was not cold or I guess they would have been frozen. They knelt together on the barn floor and the woman prayed for God's protection through the day. Peasley brought food for them and stowed them away on the top of his haymow with a pair of hickory sticks. I suppose they got some sleep there. I went into the house to breakfast and while I ate Brimstead told me about his trip. His children were there. They looked clean and decent. He lived in a log cabin a little further up the road. Mrs. Peasley's sister waited on me. She is a fat and cheerful looking lady very light complexioned. Her hair is red—like tomato ketchup. Looks to me a likely stout-armed, good-hearted woman who can do a lot of hard work. She can see a joke and has an answer handy every time."

For details of the remainder of the historic visit of Samson Taylor to the home of John Peasley we are indebted to a letter from John to his brother Charles, dated February 21, 1832. In this he says:

"We had gone out to the barn and Brimstead and I were helping Mr. Taylor pitch up his horses. All of a sudden two men came riding up the road at a fast trot and turned in and came straight toward us and pulled up by the wagon. One of them was a slim, red-cheeked young fellow about twenty-three years old. He wore top boots and spurs and a broad-brimmed black hat and gloves and a fur waistcoat and party lines. He looked at the tires of the wagon and said: 'That's the one we've followed.'

"'Which o' you is Samson Taylor?' he asked.

"'I am,' said Taylor.

"The young fellow jumped off his horse and tied him to the fence. Then he went up to Taylor and said:

"'What did you do with my master, you dirty sucker?'

"Men from Missouri hated the Illinois folks then days and called 'em Suckers."

"'Hain't you a little reckless, young feller?' Taylor said, as cool as a cucumber. He stood up nigh the barn door, which Brimstead had closed after we backed the wagon out.

"The young fellow stepped close to the New Salem man and raised his whip for a blow. Quik as lightning Taylor grabbed him and threw him up in the barn door, keeckaw! He hit so hard the boards bent and the whole barn rang and trembled. The other fellow tried to get his pistol out of its holster, but Brimstead, who stood beside him, grabbed it and I got his horse by the bridle and we both held on. The young fellow lay on the ground shakin' as if he had the ague. You never see a man so spilt in a second. Taylor picked him up. His right arm was broke and his face and shoulder bruised some. Ye'd n—thought a steam engine had blowed up while he was puttin' wood in it. He was kind o' limp and the mud had leaked out o' him."

"I reckon I better find a doctor," he says.

"'You get into my wagon and I'll take you to a good one,' says Taylor.

"Just then Stephen Nuckles, the circuit minister, rode in with the big bloodhound that follows him around."

"The other fellow had got off his horse in the scrumming. Taylor started for him. The slaver began to back away and suddenly broke into a run. The big dog took after him with a kind o' honk rear. We all began yellin' at the dog. We made more noise than you'd hear at the end of a horse race. It scared the young fellow. He put on more steam and went up the ladder to the roof of the woodshed-like ached wended. The dog stood barking as if he had treed a bear. Taylor grabbed the ladder and pulled it down.

"'You stay there till I get away an' you'll be safe,' said he.

"The man looked down and swore and shook his fist and threatened us with the law.

"Mr. Nuckles rode close to the woodshed and looked up at him.

"'My brother, I fear you are not a Christian,' he said.

"'He swore at the minister. That settled him. I reckon he better stay till till he gets a little o' God's grace in his soul,' says the minister.

"Then he says to the dog: 'Ponto, you keep 'em in right there.' Ponto dog understood what was expected of him.

VULTURES ON THE GANGES

Scavenger Birds Perform Function That is in High Degree Repulsive to Vastness.

On December 2, 1920, writes a correspondent, I was in the vicinity of the Massacre that of evil repute in the Mutiny of 1857, and saw a culture over the Ganges. This scavenger bird was apparently on the surface of the water, and was flapping its huge wings, for all the world as if a small crocodile had gripped its wings and was trying to rip it under. Then I observed a white object come to the surface momentarily and submerge again. My interest was aroused at the strange proceedings which followed. The vulture dapped its wings as the weight of the lotus told on its strength. Again the white broke the surface and as it did so the huge bird, with fully opened wing, opened to be using itself in the manner of a sail, and with the help of the breeze, which was blowing, stirred its prey out of the mid-stream, flapping every now and then, till at last it ran the white object right up on a gently sloping shelf of sand on the near bank. By this time the air

OLD RESIDENT CLAIMED BY DEATH.

Mrs. Archie McNeven, estimable Old Lady succumbs to illness.

At 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, occurred the death of Mrs. Archie McNeven, at the home of her youngest son Peter McNeven in this city. The demise of this estimable old lady marks the passing of one of Grayling's oldest residents, and a life of usefulness has come to a close.

In February of last year Mrs. McNeven contracted influenza and since then has been ailing. At 6:30 o'clock last Friday night she suffered an attack of paralysis and altho in a feeble condition, knew her husband and children and understood everything that was said to her up to the last moment.

Mary Jane Alexander was born in Richmond, New York, October 19, 1848.

When a young girl ten years old, she with her parents moved to Dryden, Mich., and later to Goodland, Mich. At the latter place the young lady met and was united in marriage to Mr. Archie McNeven. Five children came to gladden their home, four of whom survive, one daughter, Mrs. Kate Bushaw, passing away number of years ago. The family resided in Goodland until 1884, when they came to Grayling to reside. Mr. McNeven was interested in the lumber industry and also in farming and with his helpmate watched over their little village grow each year with pride.

Mrs. McNeven was nearing the four score mark and would have celebrated her 75th birthday Anniversary on the 19th day of this month. They had always called Grayling their home altho for the past twelve years they had spent their winters in Flint with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith, coming to Grayling each summer to visit their sons and their families.

Mrs. McNeven like many more of our faithful aged ladies, during the recent war labored unceasingly with her knitting needles making warm sweaters, socks and wristlets for the Red Cross to be sent to our boys overseas.

In fact during her whole life, her hands were never idle. Her life's work is done and with her loved one she has left pleasant memories. Her death has caused deep sorrow for her husband, who is nearing the age of 85 years.

Their married life had been one of sincere happiness they sharing equally in each other's joys and sorrows.

Other than the husband and their daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith of Flint, are three sons, William E. James, and Peter M. of this city, surviving.

Rev. C. E. Doty of the Michelson Memorial church officiated at the services, which were held at the home of Peter McNeven yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A choir rendered many pleasing hymns during the service. Those from out of the city, who came to be in attendance at the funeral of the deceased were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Flint, Mr. William McNeven and Mrs. E. Mitchell of Gaylord.

HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK.

Nation-Wide Movement Set for November 7-12.

Every Four Corners has its Home Town week now-a-days, but all the boys and girls who have wandered from the Township Center cannot get back to enjoy the loved surroundings, but all can subscribe to the old hometown paper and thus keep well in touch with the little spots they once called home.

What joy to run over the school promotions and find that the tots of a few years ago are moving higher and higher in scholastic circles and eventually blossom forth as the "sweet girl graduates" or the "clean strong boys" discarding knickers.

Just watch that hardened old city codger open up his home paper—it is the first thing he picks up out of his bunch of mail—and what can he find there to interest him? Angus McGugan's horse died yesterday; Peter McGregor will run for the county clerkship; Horace Jell hopes to win the secretarieship of the Hilltown agricultural society; Lydia Munroe has opened a millinery store in one side of the printing office; Mrs. Brown lost her hand satchel in the butchery; Dr. Dorland is attending Clara Grown who is down with a severe cold; Mrs. Plater broke her ankle and is in the county hospital.

Yet though he smiles at the oldtime styles and expressions he enjoys it all over and over again, for it takes his mind back home where his wonderful homely days, happy days were spent.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Coach Company has a remarkable record. It has been in service for colds, cough and whooping cough for almost half a century and is constantly grown in favor and popularity and its good qualities become better known. It is the standard and main reliance for these diseases in thousands of homes. The effects that it can always be depended upon and is safe and pleasant to take.

Last Green Tomatoes.

In autumn after the canning is over, there is often a surplus of unpeeled tomatoes; cabbage, onions, and green peppers, too, are usually plentiful at this season and help to make good pickles. They can be used in relatively equal proportions, except for onion or onion. Half as much onion as any other ingredient is usually best. The United States department of Agriculture has tested this recipe.

Chopped Pickle.

1 gallon green tomatoes.

1/2 gallon of cabbage.

1/2 gallon of onions.

12 large green peppers.

Put all together in a vessel, cover with water, add one pint of salt, and let stand over night. In the morning, pour it all in a bag and drain thoroughly. After draining add 1 pint of white mustard seed. In a separate vessel boil 1 gallon of vinegar with 1 1/2 pounds of brown sugar.

When boiling hot, pour over the choiced vegetables. Put all on the stove together and cook about 15 minutes, or until jell and seal while hot.

Many persons like spices in a chopped pickle.

Green Tomato Pickle.

1/2 dozen large onions.

1/2 cups brown sugar.

1/2 lemon.

3 pds. red pepper.

3 cups vinegar.

1/2 teaspoon whole black pepper.

1/2 teaspoonful whole cloves.

1/2 teaspoonful whole allspice.

1/2 teaspoonful celery seed (crushed).

1/2 teaspoonful mustard seed.

Slice the tomatoes and onions thin.

Sprinkle over them one-half cup of salt, and let stand over night in a crock or enameled vessel. Tie the pepper, cloves, allspice, and celery seed in a cheesecloth bag. Slice the lemon and chop two pepper pods very fine. Drown the tomato and onion well. Add all seasoning except one pepper pod in the vinegar, then add the tomato and onion. Cook for one-half hour, stirring gently at intervals to prevent burning. Remove spice bag in jar and garnish with slender strips of the red pepper, placing them vertically on the opposite side of each jar. Process for 15 minutes.

Another use for green tomatoes is mock mincemeat which will be relished in winter pies.

OLD RESIDENT CLAIMED BY DEATH.

Mrs. Archie McNeven, estimable Old Lady succumbs to illness.

At 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, occurred the death of Mrs. Archie McNeven, at the home of her youngest son Peter McNeven in this city. The demise of this estimable old lady marks the passing of one of Grayling's oldest residents, and a life of usefulness has come to a close. In February of last year Mrs. McNeven contracted influenza and since then has been ailing. At 6:30 o'clock last Friday night she suffered an attack of paralysis and altho in a feeble condition, knew her husband and children and understood everything that was said to her up to the last moment.

Mary Jane Alexander was born in Richmond, New York, October 19, 1846. When a young girl ten years old, she with her parents moved to Dryden, Mich., and later to Goodland, Mich. At the latter place the young lady met and was united in marriage to Mr. Archie McNeven. Five children came to gladden their home, four of whom survive, one daughter, Mrs. Kute Bushaw, passing away a number of years ago. The family resided in Goodland until 1884, when they came to Grayling to reside. Mr. McNeven was interested in the lumber industry and also in farming and he with his helpers watched out little village grow each year with pride. Mrs. McNeven at the time of her death was nearing the four score mark and would have celebrated her 90th birthday anniversary on the 19th day of this month. They had always called Grayling their home, although in the past twelve years they had spent their winters in Flint with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith, coming to Grayling each summer to visit their sons and their families. Mrs. McNeven like many more of our faithful aged ladies, during the recent war labored unceasingly with her knitting needles making warm sweatshirts, socks and wristlets for the Red Cross to be sent to our boys overseas. In fact during her whole life, her hands were never idle. Her life's work is done and with her loved ones she has left pleasant memories. Her death has caused deep sorrow for her husband, who is nearing the age of 85 years.

Their married life had been one of sincere happiness, they sharing equally in each other's joys and sorrows.

Other than the husband one daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith of Flint, and three sons, William E. James and Peter M. of this city, survived.

Rev. C. E. Doty of the Michelson Memorial church officiated at the services, which were held at the home of Peter McNeven yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A choir rendered many pleasing hymns during the service. Those from out of the city, who came to be in attendance at the funeral of the deceased were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Flint, Mr. William McNeven and Mrs. E. Mitchell of Gaylord.

Bay City—The suit of the General Motors corporation against the estate of Henry D. Smith, of this city, for $600,000, growing out of the failure of the estate to pay for stock subscribed by the late Henry B. Smith, was started in United States court. According to the plaintiff, Mr. Smith subscribed for 14,402 shares to make his total holdings in General Motors, 72,000 shares and that he paid down $28,404. IONIA FIRE WILL FREE 100 INMATES

$400,000 BLAZE DESTROYED CELL BLOCKS, ADMINISTRATION BUILDING, CHAPEL.

STATE WILL RUSH REBUILDING
Convicts Held at Furniture Factory Under Heavy Guard Awaiting Accommodations.

IONIA, Mich.—The $400,000 fire which wrecked Ionia Reformatory here Oct. 5 will bring freedom to about 100 short-term inmates held for minor offenses. This was decided at a conference between Governor Alex J. Groesbeck and members of the state commission on penal institutions as a measure to relieve congestion and simplify the state's problem of handling 703 convicts.

Fred E. Janette, commissioner of parole, says there are a number of men in the reformatory who were convicted of minor violations of the prohibition law, and who in the ordinary course of events might have expected fines of $10 or 30 days in the county jail. Because the county jails are expensive institutions, however, there is a tendency to sentence such men to six months at Ionia where the cost of maintenance falls upon the state.

Working day and night, mostly with inmate labor, Thomas Burns, warden has succeeded in clearing away the wreckage and the work of reconstruction has already been started. The present plan is to rebuild the east and west cell blocks, building the walls to a height of two stories, to tear out the cells and transform the buildings into dormitories. One of the other wings will be repaired as a cell block, being used as a quarantine section and also for incarceration of prisoners whom it is not considered wise to permit in the dormitories.

In checking over the contents of the administration building saved from the fire, it has been found that practically no records were lost. The histories of the present inmates and former inmates are intact.

Iron Mountain—A message received here from Alton T. Roberts, of Marquette, says that Gen. Armando Diaz, commander-in-chief of the Italian army during the war, who is coming to this country to be the guest of the American Legion, probably will visit the Upper Peninsula as the guest of Mr. Roberts.

Detroit—Sam Margolies, one of the owners of the roadhouse bearing his name, was sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary by Judge J. Tuttle. The particular offence for which he was sentenced was one against the narcotic act, but the federal authorities have several others against him.

Grand Rapids—The Rose swift Aeroplane company, commercial aeroplane concern of this city, announces plans for a scheduled seaplane passenger between Chicago and Petoskey and Chicago and Macatawa Park next year. Two seven-passenger seaplanes will be used with hydroplanes connecting at each end.

Allegan—Agnes Allen, 18, is being held awaiting sentence, after she pleaded guilty in circuit court to having liquor in her possession. She is the first woman under 21 convicted under the prohibition statutes in this county. Ford Smith and Walter Bump, with whom she was riding when she was arrested, also are being held for sentence.

Traverse City—That the state of Michigan will have approximately 22,000,000 speckled trout fry to plant in its northern streams in the spring of 1922, was the word given out by A. T. Stewart, the conservation department here. This is more than twice the number trout planted any previous year and is made possible by the expenditure of $20,000 for eggs.

Sturgis—Indignation was aroused in this city when it was found that vandals had torn down the corners of the partially erected walls of the Elks temple, now being erected. Mr. Miller, the contractor, is erecting the building on the open shop principle. The unions of the city have resented the attitude of Mr. Miller and have fired some of their members who have worked on the job, it is reported.

Battle Creek—Otto Jahn, 49 years old, is at Nichols hospital, when he ought to be in Oak Hill cemetery. He pointed a gun squarely at his forehead, between the eyes and pulled the trigger. The bullet rendered him unconscious, but Dr. H. R. Pearce found it did not penetrate Otto's skull. A flesh wound and powder burns were all the damage done, but the bullet was badly flattened. Jahn was formerly employed as a foundryman at the Duplex Printing Press company's plant, but had to quit his job through illness.

Monroe—Fred A. Nims, the last survivor of the staff of Gen. George A. Custer during the Civil War, died here. He was 80 years old. Mr. Nims served as a lieutenant under Custer throughout the entire war and in Indian campaigns for several years after the war. After being mustered out of service Mr. Nims returned to Monroe and had been prominent in business affairs here for many years. He was appointed by former Gov. Warner, as a member of the committee which had charge of the erection of the Custer monument in this city.

Owosso—Because the state and federal appropriations for the year, totaling $167,000 for indemnities to owners of cattle which are found afflicted with tuberculosis and killed, will be exhausted soon, the work of testing cattle for the eradication of the disease, will have to stop in Michigan in a few weeks. This is the statement of Dr. W. T. Rich of the state health department, who spoke at a meeting in the library here. Dr. Rich said that the percentage of cattle afflicted with tuberculosis is greater in Wayne county than anywhere in the state.

TEACHING THROUGH PLAY.

Is there a kindergarten in your community? No? Then why not practice kindergarten principles in your own home? I do not mean by this that you must sit down and devote every second for three hours to your children. But teach your child while you are about your work. Teach him through play.

Today play is considered a great factor in education. "Play is the expression of awakening instincts." Watch your little girl with her doll. The doll is her baby and she is its mother. Through this play she is developing the instinct of mother love. Watch your little boy playing store or fireman. He, too, is preparing for future manhood. Let us then teach through play.

It is an acknowledged fact that the kindergarten gives a child certain advantages by cultivating self confidence, the power of observation, originality of thought and other qualities.

Let us see if it is not possible for the mother to develop similar characteristics at home.

First. Self-confidence: If the child asks to help with the dishes, make the bed, or perform other little tasks, do not be too busy to listen to the request. Accept the offer of assistance with thanks, even if the work takes longer or needs to be done over. Remember this is one of the ways of developing self-confidence and helpfulness. Discouragement will not cultivate self-confidence.

Second. Ability to memorize and think: Children love anything rhythmic, whether the words are understood or not. Repeat or sing nursery rhymes and jingles to the children. Soon they will be repeating and singing them after you. Find the time during the day to read or tell them stories. Every child loves a story, especially if acted out.

Third. Love of Nature: When out for walks teach the children about the trees, flowers, and birds. Nature can be known and loved in the parks of the city, as well as in the woods and fields of the country. And reading nature stories supplements the first-hand knowledge children are gaining, thus adding to their interest and appreciation.

Fourth. Observation: This can be cultivated by giving a child magazines, calling his attention to the different pictures and pointing out every detail. Then as he studies for himself, not one thing in a picture, no matter how small, will escape his eye. And he will become observant not only of pictures but of everything else about him.

Fifth. Originality: With blocks, the sandpile or plasticine, (the latter can be purchased at stores carrying school supplies) a child can be interested in the making of various objects. Soon he will branch out for himself, doing really creative work.

Sixth. Cleanliness and Orderliness: A child should be commanded for picking up his toys when he has finished his play, having it impressed upon him that these toys are his responsibility. If notice is taken of his clean face and hands before and after meals, then constant reminding will not be necessary. Kind and gentle apprenticeship is an inspiration. Fretful, impatient, high-spirited children, with my little two and half year old daughter, I have followed the kindergarten thought, including the above suggestions, and the results have been most successful.

Tomato Mincement. Slice up a quantity of green tomatoes and sprinkle well with salt. Put into a bag and hang up to drip at night. The salt left on the tomatoes need not be washed off. In the morning take equal weights of sugar and tomatoes and cook until the tomatoes are thoroughly done. To 7 pounds of the mixture of tomatoes and sugar add 3 pounds of sweetened raisins, with cinna- and cinnamon to suit the taste. Cook a short time after adding the seasoning and put into jars. This will keep without being sealed and will make delicious pies, which many consider as those from ordinary mincemeat.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.
